Some time ago the Council authorized the committee to secure plans and hids for a building, the cost not to exceed $105,000, including architects fees and extras. The plans of Carneal & Johnston were accepted, and bids invited, but when opened last week all bids were found to exceed the original estimates. Bids had been secured on both fireproof and nonfireproof construction. With the advice of the Building Inspector, and under supervision of a subcommittee, the architects made certain changes in the plans and invited new proposals, which were opened by the committee last night. In the fireproof building recommended the chief change is to make the structure wath-bearing, instead of carried on a steel frame throughout. Wooden window frames were substituted on the street sides for the fireproof frames required by the underwriters' association, and terra cotta trimmings were substituted for concrete stone.

Joint Discussion.

The conception of a public hearing as entertained by the Governor and the Allen sympathizers caused disagreement at the beginning of the meeting. The Governor believed that both sides of the case should be presented, while the petitioners expected to have the only say in the matter. On that account the announcement by the Governor at the beginning of the session that John S. Draper, one of the attorneys who prosecuted the Allens, was present to make a simple statement of the facts in the case, threw a commotion into the camp of the petitioners.

Judge Wingfield and Dr. McDaniel urged that Mr. Draper be made to deliver his statement first and allow the infeen speakers for Claude to follow him. This the Governor in fairness refused. A compromise was reached by allowing R. H. Willis, counsel for Claude to make the opening appeal. Claude, to make the opening appear.

Still more petitions for elementy were presented to the Governor in the course of the hearing. E. R. Bowman, of Petersburg, presented a petition containing about 250 names, with the statement that 55 per cent of the Fetersburg population was in favor of a commutation. While some of the most rabid of the Allen supporters claim 55,000 names have been signed to the petitions. Judge N. H. Hairston testimates the number at between 14,000 and 15,000, and still others estimate tess than that.
